“DRAMA AT THE 18TH”
AUTOGRAPHED BY TIGER WOODS

In perhaps the most-watched and exciting Major golf tournament in recent memory, Tiger Woods starts the body-english as his putt rolls towards the hole on the 18th green to make birdie and send the U.S. Open at Torrey Pines into a playoff round. After another 19 holes, Tiger emerged the winner in what he was to describe as his greatest win ever as a professional golfer. According to various observers, interest in the playoff ran so high that the volume on the New York Stock Exchange was down during the telecast. This incredible, drama-filled moment is now captured for the ages by renowned sports artist Malcolm Farley. Published as a signed and numbered hand-enhanced giclée, in an edition of just 125, "Drama at the 18th" is sure to become the most sought-after in Soho Editions series of Farley-Tiger images, The first three such releases are now completely sold out at the publisher.
